About the Novels

The Black Moth by Georgette Heyer

Falsely accused, John Carstare, an Earl, rejects society to become a highwayman. But when he rescues the lovely Diana from a villainous Duke, he is determined to protect her, and soon falls for the fiery beauty. This is the first novel by beloved historical romance author Georgette Heyer.

Emily Fox-Seton by Frances Hodgson Burnett

This romance, by the author of The Secret Garden and A Little Princess, is actually two books - The Making of a Marchioness followed by its sequel, The Methods of Lady Walderhurst. Emily is content with her humble life and meager income. Everyone in her life takes her for granted, but when Lord Walderhurst discovers this lovely woman, he can't resist her charms.

An Egyptian Princess by Georg Ebers

Set in Ancient Egypt, Greece and Persia, this is a sweeping historical saga told through the eyes of an Egyptian princess.

Lamp in the Desert by Ethel M. Dell

Set in India, this historical romance features an army captain named Everard, who is desperately in love with a young woman called Stella. Stella marries another man, one whose character is in doubt, but when Everard discovers the truth about Stella's supposed new husband, he's determined to make things right. Drama, intrigue, and romance soon follow.

The Mountain Girl by Payne Erskine

A young English doctor from a wealthy family travels to North Carolina to recover his health. There he falls in love with an extraordinary young woman, but they must overcome obstacles – including their very different backgrounds.

The Sheik by Edith M. Hull

In this classic bodice-ripper, the feisty and adventurous Diana sets off on a month-long trip into the desert, but she's kidnapped and ravaged by Ahmed ben Hassen, a sheik whose passions both shock and excite Diana. The basis for the movie with Rudolph Valentino.

The Shuttle by Frances Hodgson Burnett

Enter the world of an English village before the first World War in this delightful romance. American heiress Bettina Vanderpoel must rescue her sister from a disastrous marriage to an impoverished and evil Englishman, Sir Nigel. Can another, far nobler Englishman save the day and win Bettina's heart?

A Sicilian Romance by Ann Radcliffe

Set on the northern shores of Sicily, this gothic romance follows Julia, daughter of a fallen aristocrat. Julia is in love with one man but about to be forced to marry another. She must flee to avoid the dungeons and remain with her true love.

To Have and To Hold by Mary Johnston

An English soldier turned explorer in colonial Jamestown buys a wife. Little does he know that the lovely Jocelyn is the escaping ward of King James I. Pirates, pursuits, shipwrecks, trials and massacres soon follow before our hero can be reunited with his true love.

The Way of An Eagle by Edith M. Dell

Set in India, this intriguing romance begins with a siege on a fort, where the daughter of the Brigadier-General finds that her life is in grave danger. Her father chooses Nick Ratcliffe, one of his officers, to protect and rescue her.
