The Supreme Court is the highest court in the land. They get to decide what the Constitution means. Don't you wish you'd had them with you for your 8th grade civics exam?

Unlike the other two branches of government, the workings of the Supreme Court are cloaked in secrecy, and the secret word is "Oyez." I don't know what it means, but it makes people stand up when you say it.

After the court's clerk gets through saying "Oyez," he says "God save this Honorable Court." Then the judges hand down rulings that nobody else can say the word "God" in any other public building. I guess it's kind of like junior high--they saw God first, and want to keep him for themselves.

Many lawyers dream about arguing before the Supreme Court. The way it goes is you stand up and say "May it please the court" and then the judges start yelling at you about something that happened a long time ago, have you thought about that, doesn't that change everything?

I get the same effect when I forget to call my wife and tell her I'll be late getting home from work.
